BOARD CORNER MESSAGE

N is the fourth letter in CONNECTIVITY and we will use the theme - Networking. An article I was reading stated that networks are established for collective benefits and are most successful and effective when there is give and take by participants and members. This involves sharing your experience with other members as well as learning from theirs. A network's strength in any particular area or service depends on how actively its members exchange information with each other and reciprocate. For example, if you receive advice from a network partner, be prepared to offer your own help in the future.

Members who are willing to pass on skills to each other will establish the network as a center of excellence or expertise and facilitate future collaborations. A well run network will thrive if its participants play an active role in keeping the network running. In other words, you get out of it what you put into it.

These are wonderful examples of how being actively involved in ASWA will improve the value of your membership. Let's all be a part of a thriving ASWA Denver Chapter by becoming actively involved. I know personally, ASWA has been a very beneficial in my life both professionally and personally.

For more information, please contact any of the board members or committee chairs.

RMAC

Another great Rocky Mountain Area Conference (RMAC) was presented September 24 and 25, and now is the time to start thinking of volunteering for next years RMAC. Three accounting organizations: ASWA, IIA, and IMA, present the conference. Each year a different organization takes responsibility for RMAC chairperson and RMAC treasurer. For the 2010 RMAC ASWA will be treasurer and for the 2011 RMAC ASWA will be chair. ASWA is looking for volunteers to take on these positions. Remember it is RMAC proceeds that fund our great Scholarship Trust.
